We build websites to your specific requirements. Every website serves a different purpose, but your website must talk directly to your customer and also to the billions of other potential customers out there! We can help you get on-line and connect with your customers if you are selling products, displaying a portfolio, publishing a blog, or using your website as a professional resume.

We offer a wide range of website solutions. Some are more affordable with limited features while others are more complex and require a more specialised approach. Whatever you need, we can get you connected.

Yolanda Carstens has over 20 years IT experience, with the last 6 years focused on website design and development. Yolanda is a “hands-on” mother of 2 and is the owner of OtagoIT. The Company is based in Perth, Western Australia and has completed a range of projects for both national and international clients.

The websites developed by Yolanda are creative, functional and practical. Yolanda focuses on each clients individual needs and offers a creative and uniquely personal approach. Starting her website design company after a fulfilling career in IT, Yolanda herself says, “An old dog can certainly learn new tricks and succeed in this highly competitive, digital world.”

It is not unusual for clients to have a limited understanding of IT while recognising the importance of being on-line. Yolanda has created a niche in designing websites for like minded entrepreneurs who require an on-line presence for their businesses.

Yolanda is well recognised for her ability to avoid “techno-speak” and to describe simply and clearly, the steps required to get connected and to get the most benefit from being on-line.
